

CAPE AIR'S FOUNDER & CEO, DAN WOLF

In 1989 Captain Dan Wolf founded Cape Air with one route, Boston to Provincetown, eight employees and a yearly passenger total of 8,000. Today, Cape Air, along with sister airline Nantucket Airlines is one of the largest independent regional airlines in the United States. The fleet of sixty-four Cessna 402s and two ATR-42s fly to some of the most beautiful destinations in the world. Cape Air is an employee-owned company with a workforce of 987 and carries more than 700,000 passengers a year.

Mr. Wolf's secondary education was at Germantown Friends School in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania followed by a bachelor's degree in Political Philosophy from Wesleyan University in Middletown, Connecticut. At the Quaker School of Aeronautics he received a degree in Airframe and Power Plant Maintenance. Dan continues to stay current with his airline transport pilot's license and flies a scheduled route in the summer season.

In June of 2010 Dan received an honorary doctorate degree from Daniel Webster College in Nashua, New Hampshire.

In November 2010 Senator Dan Wolf was elected to serve in the Massachusetts State Senate representing Cape Cod and the Islands.

Dan serves on a number of boards including the Regional Airline Association, the Cape Cod Business Round Table, the Association for the Preservation of Cape Cod, the Housing Assistance Corporation of Cape Cod and the Arts Foundation of Cape Cod. Under Dan's leadership Cape Air has received recognition for being one of the most philanthropic companies in southeastern Massachusetts.

In addition, Dan received the prestigious "Good Guy" award from the Massachusetts Women's Political Caucus for his outstanding support of women in the workforce. The Commuter/Regional Airline News named Dan Wolf, Turboprop Executive of the Year and he was awarded the Ernst and Young Entrepreneur of the Year for New England.

Dan resides in the Cape Cod town of Harwich with his wife, three daughters and an assortment of pets. He enjoys a daily morning bike ride and traveling with his family.
